

ABSTRACT:

An established framework to manage technology-enabled innovation in healthcare will be presented, based on Fondazione don Gnocchi experience. A special focus will be on the interplay between actors of the healthcare ecosystem, from research to service providers to industry and policy makers, as a critical success factor to ensure a real impactful innovation process. In this landscape, an unexpected dialogue among players acting at very different solution maturity levels is proposed as the way to break existing cultural barriers and design high-value research and innovation paths.
