

Francesco Rovense - CV

Francesco Rovense is a researcher at the ENEA Casaccia Research Centre. He holds a master's degree in Energy Engineering and a PhD in Civil and Industrial Engineering from the University of Calabria. His main interests focus on concentrating solar power plants, thermal machines, and thermal energy storage systems. He is currently involved in the design, modelling, and testing of medium- to high-temperature heat storage systems and advanced concentrating solar thermal power plants.